

Eden, NSW

Right down on the far south coast of NSW, the township of Eden has worked with the two troubled industries - timber and fishing - for longer than most can recall. Despite the industrial tensions, it is widely regarded as one of the most beautiful family boating areas in Australia - but it is too often overlooked in the helter-skelter rush to the north . . . Recently, F&B contributors Di Ross (words) and John Batty (photography) put this special Two Part report together all about this unforgettable area.
