

Fun to catch - for a while - on light tackle, the trevally were often a nuisance . . . as were the resident sharks, which came in S,M,L, and XL sizes!

Plan B: Okay, Let's Go Down To Emu Reef, NT

After weeks of planning, Darwin builder & fisho Andy Myers' two boat expedition set-up to explore a remote area of the Northern Territory, fell apart when crew and the other boat became unavailable at the last minute. With fuel, bait, provisions and a leave pass organised, Andy and regular mate Andre took the only possible decision . . . and slipped into Plan B: To go in the other direction down to another fabulous fishing ground, Emu Reef, several hundred km from Darwin, with a rep for seriously big ooglies . . .

Report and pics from Andy Myers

We have to give the trevs their due - they can put up one helluva fight, and really make fishos know they're fishin'!